

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to have their stations broadcast the anti-Kerry documentary days before the election without also broadcasting an anti-Bush documentary such as Fahrenheit 911 either before or after one another is wrong.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and should serve the public interest. It appears this corporation controls the airwaves. We, the viewers and the public, get more of what's good for Sinclair Broadcasting's bottom line and less of what we need for our country. It is more important we see broadcast decisions from real people from our own communities, not from some uncaring corporate headquarters not located in our community.

Sinclair Broadcasting's actions shows the FCC needs to strengthen media ownership rules against nonlocal corporate ownership of local media.

Thank you.
